My Library, My Story: Brianna

By Brianna Stewart

I've been a student worker at the library for the last four years; they have been the best four years of my life. During my time here, I've worked alongside phenomenal students, staff & faculty. Being a part of the library community has given me joy. One of my favorite places to be in the library is Interlibrary Loan, where I currently work. At the beginning of my career working as a student worker, I was an overwhelmed and anxious freshman. As time went on, I established a greater understanding of how the library works, and the different resources it has to offer. With the library offering so many different resources, it has helped me tremendously with my academic career.

Being a student worker and working for the library also gives me a sense of responsibility. It gives me pride knowing that I'm also playing apart to help my fellow peers advance in their studies.

Having the knowledge I do about the library gives me a chance to spend more time finding things that interest me personally and academically. Working at the library helps me keep my love for books going, because when I was a child that's all I would do in my spare time. I believe that books have helped me be more creative; it definitely has enhanced my imagination. Overall, working here at the library gives me such a passion to be more involved in its community by getting other students to use it and its resources as much as possible. I believe it's one of the best places to be on campus, because it gives you so many opportunities to thrive.
